Dear Sir,

I am writing to thank you for the contribution you made to the superb prize auctioned at our previous Help for Heroes day.

Help for Heroes is a vehicle through which the public can express their gratitude and respect for members of the Armed Forces who risk everything on our behalf. Through your support we have been able to commit, or otherwise designate, over £20 million to support the wounded. It is support from companies like yourself, that enable this to happen.

Most of the donations have come in from ordinary decent people who might never have responded to a service charity before, much of it raised by those people actually doing something.

As you can understand Help for Heroes is an on-going effort and last year I pledged to raise £100,000 through various events. So far I have raised £115,000 and I am continuing with various activities to increase this figure. Once again I would be grateful if you could pass on my thanks to the individuals within your company who contributed to this magnificent auction item.

The finished item:

Yours Sincerely
Captain Eddie Boyce
Quatermaster
